CRIMINAL WASTE IS CHARGE MADE ON USE OF AIRCRAFT MONEY

Congressman Madden Defends Congress at Special Hearing

Washington, Oct. 12.—A scathing denunciation of the war and navy departments formal administration of money appropriated by congress for air craft, amounting in some instances to "criminal waste" was made by Representative Martin Madden, of Illinois, chairman of the house appropriations committee before the special aircraft board today.

Replying to the statements of war and navy department witnesses who blamed congress for the backwardness of American aviation, Madden contemptuously exclaimed, "blame shifters."

"If credit is to be given to the testimony of many of the witnesses, who have preceded me," said Madden, "this period of development and experimenting has been productive of very little, if any, advance toward a plan which might be accepted by congress."

"You have been told by men who should know that, with few exceptions, no real steps have been made. I cannot help but conclude that the technical development of this new art may not be safely left to the armed forces if we are to take our places among the countries of the world in the air. xxx Sure it is not too much to expect that the millions spent should have purchased more than is in evidence in tangible results."

Madden cited the purchase of 262 Thomas-Morse planes by the army air services which were relegated to the second line within a year after purchase because of their lack of speed and vision.

"I have heard something of a course of criminal negligence," he said "but that borders on criminal waste. Think of buying 262 pursuit planes that a pilot has difficulty in seeing out of. Congress certainly was not to blame in this instance."

Declaring that the "demands of some of these bureau people would bankrupt the government xxx who concern themselves little with the whole sum available to go round," Madden said the army and navy were worst of all.

"They always see a war on the horizon and want to be ready at the drop of the hat to go after or meet the other fellow," he said.

"But," he continued, "I don't condemn them for that, but I do condemn them when Congress has appropriated all that the country can afford, for trying to blame congress when they find themselves in difficulties because they have not wisely applied the money placed at their disposal."

"What would these blame-shifters have us do?" he asked and then cited the navy's post-war demand for a 350,000 man fleet and the army's attempt to get a standing army of 500,000 and a university military training law, at a total cost of over $2,500,000, a year.

"The navy wanted to keep in commission virtually everything that would float," he said. "They would not de-commission them; congress had to force it. I cite these instances to show the lack of concern over our defense people as to the fellow who foots the bills and illustrates the extravagance of their ideas."

"The failure of the army and navy to spend their money in the air service is not unique."

Because of the experimental state of aircraft development and the lack of any definite plan, Madden said it would be unwise to grant huge appropriations for air work.

"It is our responsibility for what we grant and we are ready to take the blame for what we grant and we are ready to take the blame for what we do, but not where the blame is due to improper use of the funds which we do allow," he said.

"Our experimental policy has developed what?" he asked.

He recommended an organization scheme which would call for 1,500 planes, ten ground men for each plane and 1500 officers. This plan, he said, would cause an initial outlay of $87,500,000 but its operation cost would steadily decrease.

BODY OF MISSING AIR MAIL PILOT FOUND IN SEAT OF WRECKED PLANE

Investigation of Accident Cause Begun By Inquiry
Board—Mail Recovered—Believe Ames Crashed Into Mountain In Fog.

Bellefonte, Pa., Oct. 12.—A board of investigation today began an inquiry into the cause of the death of Charles H. Ames, airmail pilot who sacrificed his life at Hecla Gap, near here to bring the mail through.

Ames' body, strapped to his plane, was found yesterday by 15-year-old Charles DeArnett, member of a searching party.

The plane was cut asunder by the crash.

Although Ames was killed the mail was safe and untouched.

Ames' body was found less than 100 yards from the beacon light at the top of Hecla Gap. This was the place from which the search started for Ames on October 1, when he was first reported missing.

The pilot still was sitting in his seat in the plane, with the upper portion of his body hanging partly out of the pit and his head resting on his arm. A hole in the left side of his head, and a badly crushed forehead were mute evidence that he had been killed in the crash.

The plane was a complete wreck, both wings being torn off and broken, and the big liberty motor broken in two lengthwise.

The mail was found intact.

Now the irony of fate enters the picture. The pilot and his plane were found on the direct air mail course to Bellefonte, on the north side of the second ridge in the Nittany Mountain range and about half way down the mountain side.

It was not more than half a mile from the Hecla Gap beacon light. The belief is that in the low-hanging clouds and fog of Oct. 1, Ames mistook the Hecla Gap light for the Bellefonte landing field and in attempting to land crashed into the trees on the mountainside.

Tops were torn from four trees and two trees about eleven inches in diameter were broken off near the ground when struck by the ponderous machine. All evidence points to instantaneous death, possibly by a limb from one of the broken trees.

Those who examined the mechanism of the machine declare that both switches were on but the machine did not catch fire and burn. The place where the machine was found was amidst a thickly wooded section with trees 50 feet high and underbrush so thick the men scarcely could crawl through.

Young DeArnett, was one of a searching party of 24 organized at Hecla Sunday by L. H. McMullen and Charles Workman. They started out at 9 a. m. equipped with lunches and prepared to spend the day in the mountains.

They had traveled about three miles, when the boy called out:

"Here he is!"

Two of the number were sent out of the mountains to telephone the news to the landing field at Bellefonte.

Ames body will be taken to Hollywood, California, for burial by his brother, Paul Ames, of Washington, D. C. Ames' father and mother are living in Hollywood.

SENATORS ANXIOUS TO DEFEAT PIRATES AND END BIG SERIES

McKenchnie is Still Hopeful
—Pittsburgh Plays
Stupidly

BY HENRY L. FARRELL

Washington, Oct. 12.—Within one game of baseball's greatest honor and its richest prize, the Washington Senators were anxious to end the 1925 world's series here today in the fifth game against Pittsburgh following their 4 to 0 victory over the Pirates Sunday.

Three victories in the first four games are recorded for the Senators against the National League champions.

The Senators were almost prohibitive favorites to win the series and the odds were long that they would win today behind Stanley Coveleskie, who failed to win the second game of the series.

The brilliant support that was given Walter Johnson in the few tight places he worked into during yesterday's game, made the Washington fans believe that almost any pitcher could win one more game with such spirited support.

Johnson was found for only six hits but each of them got him into a hole and it was only the superb fielding of Bucky Harris, his manager, and several nice catches in the outfield that enabled him to register a shut-out and win his second game of the series.

He pitched the last five innings with a severe "Charley Horse" which he pulled trying to stretch a hit in the fourth inning.

The Pirates had several fine chances to score but they have had such little luck with men on bases during the whole series that they were unable to make anything out of their opportunities.

Although Washington considers it a cinch that the Senators will win again there was no waning of interest in today's game and there was even more baseball heard on the streets and in the hotels.

The poor showing of the National League leaders might be explained if they were in a terrific batting slump. But their stupid baseball and their rather curled-up spirit cannot be explained.

Coveleskie is sure to pitch today and if he does not win his game, Alec Ferguson will be started tomorrow.

"Fipps" Marberry and Tom Zachary will be used for relief men.

Bill McKenchnie, manager of the Pirates said he planned using Lee Meadows today and Aldridge tomorrow. He seemed certain that the teams are going back to Pittsburgh tonight for the sixth and seventh games.

Griffith Stadium, Washington, Oct. 12.—With visions of themselves fading out of the championship picture, the Pittsburgh Pirates rose in their might today and smote the high-stepping Senators on the nose, Vic Aldridge pitching the National Leaguers to a 6 to 3 win.

Hard and timely hitting off the slants of Coveleskie turned the trick for the corsairs. After Washington scored once in the first and the Pirates muffed a chance with the bases full in the same inning, the Pittsburghers came back in the third and hammered out two runs.

Washington knotted the count in the fourth and teams were tied until the seventh when successive hits scored twice for the Pirates and the Pirates gave way to Ballou, who retired the side. Washington also scored in this frame, but when Zachary opened the eighth, his southpaw slants were to the liking of the McKenchnie-men and they hammered out another run. The last run was scored off Marberry who relieved Zachary in the ninth.

First Inning

Pittsburgh—Oscar Bluege given a rousing cheer as he takes his old position at third base for the Nats. Peck ran to the stands to take Moore's foul fly. Carey got a line single to left. Cuyler hit a "Texas leaguer" into right field. Goslin took Barnhart's hard liner which was headed for the bleachers. Carey remained on second. Traynor took a Wright out, Coveleskie to S. Harris to Judge. No runs, two hits, no errors.

Washington—Rice singled to right. S. Harris sacrificed Moore to McInnis. Goslin doubled scored Rice. J. Harris struck out. Traynor took J. Peck's grounder and touched third retiring the side. One run, two hits, no errors.

Second Inning

Pittsburgh—McInnis hoisted to Goslin, who made a hard run. Zachary warming up for Washington. Smith singled to center. Aldridge hit into a double play, Bluege to S. Harris to Judge. No runs, one hit, no errors.

Washington—Ruel out. Bluege was struck out victim. Coveleskie stroled to first. McInnis took Rice's high hopper and covered first. No runs, no hits, no errors.

Third Inning

Pittsburgh—Bluege made short work of Moore's roller by a fast throw to first. Carey prompegated to first on four balls. Carey made a clean theft of second, colliding with "Stan" Harris hurt on the play and players swarmed around him. He recovered and play is resumed. Cuyler also walked. Carey scored on Barnhart's single to left. Cuyler racing to third. On an attempted double steal, Barnhart went to second and Cuyler dashed for home but was driven back to third. Cuyler scored on Traynor's sacrifice fly to Rice. Marberry warming up for the Nats. Peck tossed out Wright at first. Two runs, one hit, no errors.

HOMESEEKERS LOST WHEN VESSEL SWEEP BY SEAS, CAPSIZES

Middlewest Peoples Inspect ing Lands Are Disaster Victims

Melbourne, Fla., Oct. 12.—Tragedy has laid its hand on a group of middlewestern homeseekers who came to Florida to fulfill dreams of riches and comfort.

The party which started out yesterday on a yacht on Melbourne bay to see the lands offered them by a development company was all but wiped out when seas swept over their boat, capsizing it.

Fourteen are known to have been drowned. Three others are missing. Of the remaining eight making up the party, six were injured.

Mrs. Locke Davidson, wife of the vice president of the company which conducted the home seekers excursion, is among the dead and her husband was among those injured.

The known casualty list follows:

The dead:

Harold Roach and 12-year-old son,

Donald, of Melbourne, Fla.

Harry Coppock, Kansas City.

Miss Dreiling (or Breiling), Wichita, Kas.

Mr. Barton and wife, Wichita, Kas.

D. V. Ruckles, Wichita, Kas.

Miss Larson, Wichita, Kas.

Mrs. Locke D. Davidson, Melbourne, Fla.

L. Wagstaff, California

Mr. Salmon, Wichita, Kas.

Three unidentified victims.

Injured:

—Dickson, Dodge, Kas.

Mrs. Hill.

Mr. Cardell, Wichita, Kas.

Mrs. D. V. Ruckles, Wichita, Kas.

C. D. Skear, Wichita, Kas.

Mr. and Mrs. Dave Barnes, Wichita, Kas.

Locke Davidson, Melbourne, Fla.

Eight bodies were taken from the water. Two persons died after they had been carried ashore.

One of those was Mrs. Locke Davidson, wife of the vice president of the Melbourne Farms Development Company. Davidson had swum ashore and hurried through the surf to where the little knot of survivors and rescuers had gathered. He eagerly scanned the faces of the group and then went to where the dead had been deposited.

Without speaking a word to any one, he dived back into the water and swam toward the wrecked boat. A short time later he was seen bearing the unconscious body of his wife toward the beach. A score of bathers struck out and brought the couple to shore. But efforts to resuscitate Mrs. Davidson failed. Her husband is in a critical condition.

The disaster taxed the medical resources of the small city. Physicians and nurses from several nearby cities were summoned and they worked throughout the night as rescue boats played about Sebastian Light in search of the missing.

George Arnold, 12-year-old son of Captain Edward Arnold, of the Yacht Clara, was one of the heroes of the disaster. He was standing near his father in the wheel-house when the boat capsized. He was thrown clear and swam ashore, where he commandeered a row boat and with two men returned to the scene of the disaster.

Crouched in the bow George directed his companion, whose combined efforts at the oars were needed to keep the craft afloat. He pulled three persons to safety.

The dead were placed in a grocery store until relatives could be notified. Lack of hospital quarters forced the injured into private homes.

THREE INJURED AS TRACTION CAR HITS AUTO AT LUCAS HILL

Two women and one man, all of Dayton, escaped serious injury or death when the Chevrolet automobile in which they were riding was struck by a Dayton-Springfield and Xenia Traction car, at the Lucas Hill crossing on the Dayton Pike, Sunday night at 5 o'clock.

Mrs. James Craig, Findley Street, Dayton, had her right arm broken and received cuts and bruises; O. B. Schenck, Findley Street, Dayton and Mrs. Hall, 535 South Jefferson Street, Dayton, were cut and bruised in the accident.

The motorists were going to Dayton when their machine skidded on the highway, the wheels becoming caught in the car tracks at the crossing. The driver lost control of the car and was unable to avert the crash with the traction car, coming into Xenia. Fortunately the traction car was coming at a slow rate of speed up the hill, which is thought to have saved the lives of the trio.

The injured were brought to Xenia and taken to the Espey Hospital and were able to return to their homes Monday.

Carl Andrews was motorman and Bert Lemons, conductor on the traction car.

Your Druggist Is More Than A Merchant

Have you ever seriously considered how important to your neighborhood is the druggist? It is a mistake to think of him chiefly as a merchant and only incidentally as a professional man. He spent years in collegiate study and more years in scientific training before he offered his services to you as a pharmacist. In our case especially, we have always been careful and truthful and given our customers the best in service, merchandise and professional pharmacy. We have just rounded out 25 years of such service as we mention above and hope to render at least 25 years more. This is Pharmacy Week and we wish to call your attention to our show window display.

HEAR MISSIONARY AT LOCAL CHURCH

A large audience enthusiastically received the address of the Rev. John C. Lorimer, missionary to Egypt, in this country on furlough, at the First U. P. Church, Sunday night. The Rev. Mr. Lorimer talked before a similar audience at the Second U. P. Church, Sunday morning.

His talk concerned the Mohammedan problem and the belief of the followers of that faith in a "God of Power," believing that man's life was ruled by fate. He dwelt on other customs of the country and handled his subject in a most interesting manner.

The Rev. Mr. Lorimer has been stationed at She-el-kom, Egypt.

LURE OF THE UNKNOWN.

WANDERLUST IS WONDERLUST. Lust for strange roads is lust for the unknown things to be seen along them and at their ends. Individuals of all ages and all generations have known it—have felt it dragging from the beaten tracks to trails that lead into uncharted regions. Some never return. Some do in rags, broken, worn, weary, with stories of monsters and evil things encountered and with scars to prove their adventures. A few return in fine raiment, enriched, with wondrous takes of good things found and with evidence that bears them out. Thus do the terrors and treasures of the unknown become evident.

Sometimes the lust gets into the feet and pulls its victims along strange paths toward wondrous places, new lands, unexplored wastes. Sometimes it gets into the mind and leads toward strange theories and after strange objectives, some of them real, some chimerical, some of them good, some bad. Sometimes the lure of the unknown draws toward strange political, moral, social, economic or metaphysical "isms"—some of which prove sound and safe, but most of them gets into youth and tempts it toward odd moral conceits and fancies—some harmless, some destructive. Many wanderers perish on their journeys along strange mental lines. Others return, sadder and wiser.

A large number of grown-up "ism" chasers are today wandering after strange notions. And many of the younger generation are in pursuit of strange fancies that may come true, hunting new pleasure by new paths into new haunts. May all return as hopeful and confident as they set forth.

"JOHNNY APPLESEED."

WILL Ohioans ever forget Johnny Appleseed?

Hardly. It never should cease to remember John Chapman affectionately and popularly known as Johnny Appleseed who planted orchards and nurseries in the wilderness of Ohio and Indiana in advance of civilization. In 1847 a Representative of Ohio on the floor of the House of Representatives announced the death of "an old man who had done more for the West than any other man of his era." He alluded, of course, to Johnny Appleseed.

And now the Chamber of Commerce at Fort Wayne, Ind., has instructed a committee to locate, mark and make accessible to the public the grave of Johnny Appleseed. This action on the part of the business men of the Hoosier city arouses public interest again in a man whom Secretary Sherman once described as "one of the most striking figures this Republic has ever produced."

Meagre knowledge of Johnny Appleseed rests chiefly on tradition and legend. He was born in Springfield, Mass., in 1775, the year the embattled farmers stood by the rude bridge and "fired the shot heard round the world." Johnny's half-sister, who went West long after he did, said that when he was a boy he was fond of nature; he loved the flowers and the birds and the animals and on summer nights he would lie on his back for hours gazing up into the starry heavens.

Why John Chapman left his native state to wander in the Western wilderness is one of the mysteries of his life. It has been a fertile but futile subject of speculation for generations among poets, novelists and historians. A tradition says he was disappointed in love which drove him from his friends and relatives in the Old Boy State; and this belief has the very faint support of the fact that Chapman never married. But it cannot be substantiated. This is the usual clamor that goes up when a man does something unusual—"he was disappointed in love!"

Chapman appeared as a wanderer in the Valley of the Potomac in 1799. The following summer he was in western Pennsylvania. One day in the fall of 1800 a woman living on the banks of the Ohio river near Steubenville saw a crazy-looking craft floating down the stream. It consisted of two canoes lashed together, heavily loaded with bags and piloted by a barefooted, oddly dressed man wearing a broad-rimmed hat. It was John Chapman with a cargo of apple seeds which he had gathered from the cider presses of Pennsylvania. He told the woman he was on his way into the wilderness to plant nurseries in advance of the pioneers. "My mission in life," he told her, "is to have apple trees ready for the settlers when they come."

His first nursery, as far as is known, was in a narrow valley along the Ohio, opposite what is now Wellsburg, W. Va. Later he penetrated into the interior of Ohio. This great state owes him a vast debt which is compounding interest yearly. Some day this interest should be taken for some sort of a perpetual monument to the man who has helped fill our apple barrels.

Just Folks

BY EDWARD A. GUEST

LAZY

I'm just lazy through and through,
Shirking tasks I ought to do;
Letting fruitful hours drift by
Like the white clouds in the sky;
Caring little what is lost,
Dreaming dreams at any cost.

Duty stamps her foot and shrieks:
"You've been idling here for weeks;
You have health and strength and should
Rise and serve your neighborhood;
But I shake my head and say:

"Let me waste another day."

Even profit some would seize
Strangely has no power to please:
"Come," it shouts, "I've gold for you.
If your work you'll only do."
But I wave the chance away
Just to dream another day.

I have no excuse to give
For the idle days I live;
No excuse save this, that I
Let the golden hours go by Seeing nothing here which seems
So important as my dreams.

It is nothing but a fit,
Shortly I shall come from it,
And perhaps regret the cost
Of the golden chances lost;
But I'm lazy, and it seems
I have only strength for dreams.

Of course you do. You want a figure that you can drape your clothes on—not just hang them on! What's the use of having pretty clothes, if they just hang on you?

On Wednesday evening, Miss Ivy Edwards at her home in Wilmington entertained several ladies at a miscellaneous shower for the pleasure of Miss Gladys Scott.

The house was decorated with large baskets of dahlias. The long table in the dining room was centered with a large wedding cake which was lighted with small electric lights. At the end of the menu, the bride-to-be cut the cake for the guests.

Contests appropriate for the occasion formed the amusement for the ladies, after which, Miss Scott opened her gifts.

The Xenia ladies present were Mrs. Charles H. Scott, Mrs. H. R. Hawkins and Misses Gladys Scott, Peard Ford and Marie Bolden.

Mrs. Lloyd Clarke entertained with eight tables of progressive whist Thursday afternoon honoring Miss Gladys Scott. As soon as the guests arrived, luncheon was served.

The table for the bride-to-be was centered with a bride and groom. Suspended from the ceiling was a huge all white wedding bell. The places were marked with miniature brides and grooms. Seated with Miss Scott were Misses Helen Rountree, Marie Bolden, Eva Green, Inez Edwards and Pearl Ford.

At the end of the first course, the hostess requested the bride-to-be to read the contents of an envelope which was the announcement of the marriage of Miss Eva Green and Mr. Arnett Gibson. This was a great surprise for the guests.

Mrs. Ella Gee won the first prize, a half dozen glass plates. The hostess presented Miss Scott with a lemon fork and plate.

The out-of-town guests were Mrs. Henry Finley of Dayton; Mrs. William T. Darnell of Middletown; Mrs. R. E. Petteford of Springfield; Mrs. Joseph Hunter of Yellow Springs; Mrs. Thomas McRoberts of Columbus; Mrs. Arnett Gibson of Cincinnati; Mrs. J. E. Green, Mrs. J. D. Newsome and Mrs. C. A. The tables at which a delicious two course luncheon was served were decorated with candles and pink roses. The fees were served in forms suggestive of the bride-to-be and her pre-nuptial season.

The hostess presented Miss Scott with a hand painted china plate. Mrs. C. A. Coleman having the highest score, received a half dozen goblets.

The guests were from Springfield, Xenia, Dayton, Middletown, Urbana and Cleveland.

AN INTERNATIONAL HEART

I used to think that an Internationalist was somewhat of a dreamer. Now I feel that he alone was a great man.

Nationalism has been tried in the fire and found wanting. The world needs neighbors who will help one another.

The silent sob of millions of heroic dead in the Flanders Fields of the world is for an International Heart that will feel for all mankind.

Stripped of its glamour war is nothing more or less than plain murder. There isn't a single item about it that is glorious. The only thing glorious about war is the individual courage and sacrifice of life that the individual offers, and which the nations prostitute in the name of freedom and liberty.

But when we get an International Heart we are going to look at human life as something to be saved rather than sacrificed on the altar of greed and selfishness.

And when this kind of a heart is born in all nations there will be no more war, for people will want to help each other instead of wanting to injure and destroy.

What is wrong for the individual will never be right for the nation.

On my way to work these days I see great steel ships lying mutely in the waters of the noble Hudson. And I say to myself that these machines of destruction can never settle any question of right and wrong. Any more than a man can settle a dispute with his pockets full of loaded pistols.

What a picture of intelligence is the line that extends from the shores of the Atlantic to the Pacific and which is known as the boundary line between the United States and Canada. Not a fort or a mounted gun along its entire length.

When we give birth to an International Heart throughout the world, it won't have any poison in it. Nothing but the beat of God's heart within it, bound by the Golden Rule of the Cross.

SYNOPSIS

Young Bob Mannering is in jail, charged with manslaughter, a car in which he was riding having crashed into another and killed a woman. His father, John Mannering, is District Attorney, and declares his duty is to prosecute the boy. Mannering is opposed for reelection by Jerome Wallace. Wallace is a former suitor of Eileen, now Mrs. John Mannering, and he tells her that if he is elected he will be in a position to help both her and Bob. The offer he makes seems to be her final hope.

And yet such was Eileen's nature, that loyalty could not be forgotten nor those long years of mutual affection and common aims and aspirations discarded, however vital the object, without a struggle. Alone in her room, hours passed, leaving her in a turmoil of doubt. Without a storm arose as the darkness fell. In her mood Eileen found a sorry comfort standing by a window and gazing forth into the gloom while the wind howled about the eaves of the house and the rain shelled against the panes before her like the spendthrift of some mighty sea.

Suddenly a flash of lightning turned the universe a weird blue and the thunder reverberated overhead as if a monstrous truck was passing over the arched bridge of the firmament. Eileen leaped back, but only to step forward and, gluing her eyes to a pane, stare forth into the night at some object without which had claimed her attention.

Another lightning flash and what she saw was plain. There, huddled up on the top of the brick wall, regardless of the descending rain, was a little figure.

She returned this smile with interest—with usury.

Eileen threw open the window before her.

"Marjorie," she called, "is that you?"

The figure on the wall shifted its position, but made no response.

"Come out of the rain, child; come in here this minute," insisted Eileen, turning and hastening from the room.

Hardly a moment elapsed before she was back, bringing Marjorie Patterson, rain drenched and chilled.

"Come right over here by the fireplace, dear. I'll have these logs going in an instant. Now give me that wet coat so that I can get rid of it for you. Whatever possessed you to expose yourself in this way on such a night? Do you want to catch your death of cold?"

In spite of the flames which were leaping up from the logs, Marjorie shivered, and when she spoke it was with chattering teeth.

"Bob and I had a tryst there at the w-w-wall every night."

Very forlorn and pitiful did the girl look as she crouched there. If she were Diane, huntress of men, her arrows were badly blunted at the moment. Eileen was filled with tenderness as she regarded her.

"You met there each night?"

Marjorie nodded vigorously and there was a sorry pride in her broken tones.

"Always, for m-months, he never forgot. All I had to do was to oo-hoo and Bob would come."

"Sweet, sweet, how sweet," sighed Eileen in the midst of her own woes, finding comfort in the other's affection for her son.

Again a shiver shook Marjorie, but, despite her chattering teeth, she gazed sentimentally into the flames and went on.

"Every n-night—at n-nine—we m-met. It was our hour—I just like in a beautiful story I once read. There were lovers in it—lovely lovers."

"You darlings," whispered Eileen as if to herself.

"They had troubles, too. B-but they were always faithful—faithful unto death," continued Marjorie dreamily, only to be shaken suddenly by a great sob. "E-even if Bob c-can't keep tryst with me now I can come—I shall always come—until I die."

In a great wave of tenderness Eileen drew the girl towards her, but as her fingers touched the other's damp shoulders her mother's heart was awakened and she drew back.

"Why, darling, you are all wet, drenched to the skin, I'm afraid."

"I don't care." In Marjorie's eyes burned the fire which uplifts martyrs. "It doesn't make a bit of difference so long as I keep faith."

"I understand, dear. I realize how you feel, but you must give some thought to your health. It is not necessary that you risk your life like that."

Marjorie looked up and there was surprise and even wonder in her big eyes.

"But if you love a person, if you really love them, you don't care what sacrifice you make for them, do you?"

Eileen's eyes rested upon the girl, but in an instant there was a far-away look in them as if she had completely forgotten Marjorie's presence in the verity of her words. There was anguish, doubt and hesitation in her face and she closed her eyes as if under the stress of intense feeling. But when she opened them there was the certainty of one who has reached a decision and sees her way clear before her, in them, as well as resolution—the great resolution of a mother determined to go to any lengths for the sake of her child.

"You are right," she said, and there could be no doubt but that she was speaking to herself. "If you love a person, you do not care what sacrifices you make for his sake."

CHAPTER IX

There was a festive air about the Wallace apartment and many evidences that Jerome Wallace was entertaining. A simple affair; yes, an informal affair, quite informal. From the table spread before the fireplace Wallace and his guests had dined well, even sumptuously.

Now, in the easy comfort of his lounging robes, Wallace lay back in his chair and considered the world with that contentment which only a well lined stomach and a contented conscience can give. Yet the very interesting bit of the world upon which his smiling gaze rested was of a sort which sometimes plays havoc with conscience. It was a woman. A sloop-eyed woman, rouged of cheek, penciled of eye and with a luxuriant charm of figure, but thinly veiled by the gown she wore. A student of mankind, Wallace; evidently investigating every strata of society at first hand to fit himself for the office of District Attorney.

However that may be, he did not find his studies unduly onerous, for it was a pleased smile he gave her, with something even proprietary in it. A persuasive smile, too, for as if drawn by its power Greta hitched her chair closer to his and, thrusting her arm about his neck, returned this smile with interest.

To be more exact, with usury, because it was a provocative, languishing look which she gave him and one with a boldness which took no more account of another guest's presence than if he had been a piece of furniture.

Alas, true genius is often slighted in a careless world. He so cavalierly disregarded was none other than that master mind of politics, Slick Jennings. But, no matter, a good man cannot be downed, and this fellow Jennings was a man of parts. Behold him now in social guise, his hat tilted a bit more rakishly, his cigar slanted at a greater angle and a jovial smile playing over his ruddy, fat face. Ah, who could resist his winning ways as absorbed in his own affairs he was quite oblivious to the fact that he was regarded much in the light of a footstool in a harem.

DRAMA WILL OPEN CENTRAL HIGH LYCEUM COURSE SEASON AT SCHOOL OCTOBER 19

Presentation of "The Storm" a drama of the North woods written by Langdon McCormick, by players of the Colt-Alber Bureau will mark the opening of the annual Central High School Lyceum Course in the school auditorium, October 19.

The drama is the first of a series of six entertainments arranged with the bureau for the winter months and will introduce a list of popular attractions for the season. Season tickets and reservations for the opening performance are already for sale and money derived from the course will be applied to high school purposes.

Langdon McCormick's latest play filled the Forty-Eighth Street Theatre in New York for a solid year and is said to be the best of fifty melodramas he has contributed to American stage literature. It is appealing in its truthfulness as McCormick obtained the idea while in the Canadian woods for his health and all his characters are drawn from real life characters he met during that time. Five capable performers will stage the play here, the curtain rising at 8 p. m. Dr. C. Whitfield Ray, Fellow of the Royal Geographical Society will present his lecture in costume at the school auditorium as the second number of the course November 2. Dr. Ray is known to scientific men as "the Livingstone of South America" and in the literary world he is known through his book, "Through Five Republics on Horseback," which is now in its twenty-first edition.

The McCords, popular entertainers, will present the third lecture course number here, January 22, offering a program of light diversion that should be appealing to lyceum patrons. Their program consists of a happy mixture of dramatic and musical effort which climaxes with the "Old Fiddler" sketch.

Samuel W. Grathwell is coming February 11 to present his lecture as the fourth number of the lyceum series. Grathwell began life selling papers in Cincinnati and then worked his way to a college degree and many oratorical medals. He will deliver either "Getting By Your Hoodoo," or "Wake Up and Get up."

Leake's Orchestra Entertainers will be presented February 19, as the fifth number of the series. Their program is musical, varied with many novelties. H. J. Leake, formerly a xylophone artist with Al G. Fields' minstrels has been billed for many years also on the Keith circuit. With Mr. and Mrs. Leake, are Marguerite Crumley, violinist, pianist, saxophonist and Marimbaphone artist and Agnes Rasche, cornetist, saxophonist, pianist, marimbaphone artist and drummer.

Lowell Patton and his artists will come to the local school March 19 with the final lyceum course number and they will present costumed character studies in music. WEDNESDAY IS ANOTHER BARGAIN DAY; DOUBLE VOTES GIVEN IN AUTO CONTEST

Wednesday will be another bargain day. This is the good news being broadcast by the Detroit Street Merchants' Association, successful sponsors of last week's bargain Wednesday.

In fact the weekly bargain day on Wednesday will be a permanent fixture at least among the stores making up the association. It is announced, and not only will special bargains be offered on those days but double votes will be issued in the contest which is a handsome Willys-Knight coupe sedan is the major prize.

Wednesday bargain day has been evolved by the association for a double purpose, to give the buying public special cause for dealing with the stores included in the association and to switch some of the Saturday business to the middle of the week.

Merchants say Saturday business is so heavy that patrons can not be waited upon properly and that as a result service is at a minimum. If this business is divided, merchants say, they can not only do themselves justice in presenting their wares but give customers better service and bring about greater satisfaction to the buying public.

In fact the Wednesday bargain program has struck such a popular chord that it is likely to be adopted as a permanent feature of Xenia shopping and become universal in practice among all local merchants. The system is said to possess material advantages for the store patrons, which should aid in making the plan general in use.

In the meantime the South Detroit Street Merchants' Association reports that rapid progress is being made in the contest it is conducting. Increasing interest has marked each succeeding week of the contest, so that now organizations and individuals are using strenuous means to garner votes aimed toward the goal of a new auto for a Christmas present.

Since everyone can not win the grand prize, the association is offering a number of cash prizes that will amply repay contestants for their time. Ten prizes are offered in all, and since all are based on the greatest number of votes obtained, and votes are only obtained through purchases made at businesses represented in the association, politics has been eliminated from the contest and everyone has an equal chance.

Business houses represented in the association, which are offering special Wednesday bargains and give double votes on all purchases on that day are: Hutchison and Gibney, Moser Shoe Store, Babb Hardware Store, Criterion Clothing Store, M. A. Ross Grocery, Geyer Book Shop, Valet Press Shop, Coates Barber Shop, the W. S. Davis Oil Company, and the Stiles Coal Company.

EAGLES PLAN DRIVE FOR NEW MEMBERS

Plans for an intensive drive for new members were outlined by members of Xenia Aerie, No. 1689, Fraternal Order of Eagles, at a joint meeting and banquet held at the Aerie hall, Main and Whiteman Street Sunday afternoon and evening.

The meeting served as a "get-together" affair and arrangements were partially completed to launch a campaign which it is hoped will bring the Aerie membership to 500 by June, 1926. The local Aerie now consists of 259 members.

An enthusiastic meeting was held Sunday and members enjoyed an athletic program arranged by the gym committee composed of John Fudge, Sidney Gable, and Lawrence Rachford. The banquet course was

SAFE CRACKING IS RULED OBSOLETE

Cleveland, O., Oct. 12—Criminals change their tactics as the times change, according to police here who declare that the old time method of safe cracking is become obsolete.

While other types of crime has increased safe cracking has lagged behind. According to Captain Cuddy of the Cleveland detective department, the man who formerly specialized in safe cracking now goes in for auto stealing and other more up-to-date methods of theft.

One reason for the change in tactics is that in blowing a safe the risk is too great. Sometimes buildings are wrecked. Often cracksmen are injured, or the noise of the blast attracts attention.

Most of the safe crackers, for that matter, are young fellows, Captain Cuddy said, and they give up this branch of the criminal sciences as they become older and wiser.

EXTENSION CLASS CHANGES LOCATION

During the time the furnace in the Court House is out of order, the Greene County Extension Class will meet each Monday evening in the banquet room of the Goody Shoppe, Green Street, it was announced by H. C. Aultman, county superintendent of schools, Monday.

The Court House furnace will be out of order for several weeks it is thought and B. F. Thomas and Geo. Swartz have turned the banquet room of their shop over to the educators.

About thirty teachers attend the class.

SCHOOL SAVINGS SHOW INCREASE

School savings deposits are increasing weekly, according to records kept by H. C. Pendry, superintendent. Figures for the week ending October 2 show $79.33 was deposited with the school savings department of the Home Building and Savings Company that week. For the week ending October 9, the sum deposited amounted to $96.50.

School authorities are proud of the fact that while more than $3,000 was deposited last year by school pupils, only about $300 was drawn out during the summer months, the majority of the children taking their thrift lessons to heart and keeping their savings intact.

SMALL LOSS IN TWO FIRES ON SATURDAY

Firemen responded to two fire alarms late Saturday afternoon but in each case the damage caused was small.

Fire slightly damaged a motorcycle owned by Glenn Mitchell, colored, 7011 East Market Street Saturday afternoon at 4:50 o'clock on East Main Street when a gas line came loose resulting in a blaze.

Soot burning in a chimney flue at the residence of William Acton, 703 Chestnut Street, twenty minutes later, filled the house with smoke but caused small damage.

Fire Chief T. B. Claire is urging Xenians to cooperate with firemen in abolishing fire hazards.

"Property owners should clean chimney flues, as many fires this year are of this type and the result of pure negligence said Chief Claire. 'The fire loss from defective flues has mounted to about $75 this year and with a little precaution these fires could have been avoided.'"

My Dear Friends:
After my attack of flu I was thin, run-down and weak. I had a sallow complexion, my cheeks were sunk in and I was continually troubled with gas on my stomach. I felt stuffy and had lost my appetite. OCTOBER

Half to the flaming splendors of October! It has said to offer those who are in love with life under the open sky, summer is fading into the gold and crimson of Autumn.

There are still plenty of feathered songsters to gladden the wayfarer. Cattle continue to find ample picking on the hillside and the chickens are yet roosting on limbs of trees. Fall flowers of yellow, sanguine, and pink make winter seem a lot time off.

In the corn fields there is a shivering and shimmering. Pumpkins, tinted with gold, lay ripe between paralleled rows of deadened corn stalks. Corn blades rustle and toss in the breezes and fodder shocks are beginning to turn dark, and slump to every side.

Jack Frost has not yet arrived, but on the hillside faint tints of brown are beginning to appear here and there. The leaves are beginning slowly to drop and drift to the ditches. The nuts hang ready to fall with the first biting freeze. The days are cool, but not too cool for comfort. The rays of the sun are friendly but not unpleasantly warm. The mornings are bracing.

Shadows are lengthening and nights are chilly. It is easy for one now to think of hobgoblins and tell ghost stories before a warm hearthstone. Shadows dance fitfully on the lawns—fearsome shadows of devils and goblins and dragons.

The sauer-kraut is made and stored away in the cellar. The cellar shelves sway beneath weight of jars filled with apple butter, berries, jams, and preserves. The hogs are being fattened for fall butchering. There is but one more mess of corn on the cob.

The summer slump is over. The laziness of winter is yet to come. There is a certain crispness in the air that is a tonic. There is a charm and color and melody to allure, it is a season of harvest.

Out in the open and watch Mother Nature wield her brush.

YOU DON'T MEAN IT

Her hair was bobbed,
Her bangs cut high;
I kissed her and got
A bang in the eye.

TILTONS SCORE WIN OVER MASCOTTES TO KEEP SLATE CLEAN

By L. J. WONES

The Tilton "33" football team of this city handed the highly touted Mascotties of Dayton a beating Sunday afternoon at Cincinnati Park in a hard fought and thrilling game. The final score was 21 to 0.

The two teams were about evenly matched as for size and weight but the locals had an advantage as this was their third game while it was the opening game of the season for the Dayton gridlers. The visitors registered six first downs during the contest while the "33" bunch made but five. Each club completed one forward pass.

Neither team could score in the first quarter but in the second quarter after an exchange of punts with the Mascotties in possession of the oval on the 34 yard line, Lincoln and Barnett blocked Lels' punt and Lincoln grabbed the ball and raced ten yards or so for the first score of the game. P. Fuller kicked goal.

In the third period, shortly after the kickoff, the Mascotties were forced to punt but Scher was smothered, and did not get to kick the ball and Houk threw him on the 23, Smith made three plunges off right tackle and the ball was resting on the six yard line in possession of the six yard line. P. Fuller and Stephens gained through center and Stephens took the ball over on the next play. P. Fuller kicked goal, making the score 14 to 0. The Mascotties protested vigorously about the touchdown but Swing ruled it was a score and that ended it.

In the last period the locals got possession of the ball in midfield and a pass, Boxwell to Stephens, gained twelve yards while backs by P. Fuller, Boxwell and Smith, with Smith doing most of the gaining carried the ball to the four yard line from where Smith bounced off right tackle for the last touchdown of the game. P. Fuller again kicking goal. The game ending a few moments later.

The locals will play the winner of the Osborn Indians Tipt City game next Sunday at Cincinnati Park.

PIQUA HIGH PLUNGES AND PASSES ITSELF TO VICTORY OVER CENTRAL HIGH SATURDAY

BY PHIL FRAME

Old-fashioned football, colored at times with aerial warfare and the use of the famous Minnesota "shift," enabled the well-oiled Piqua High School grid machine to romp away with the game with Central High School Saturday afternoon at Cox Memorial Athletic Field by the overwhelming score of 45 to 2.

The visitors outstrutted, outkicked and outmaneuvered the blue and white and if Coach Vic Kolb's inexperienced eleven had not matched the best fighting qualities of Central against the best that Piqua sports stands for, the lustre of the visitors' feat would not have been so bright—would possibly lost much of its significance.

Patterning after the famous Rockne Notre Dame system, Coach Vertz of Piqua, started the game with a string of substitutes. The recruits suffered touches of stage fright however, and fumbled frequently. Central's lone two points came after two minutes of play when the Piqua center made a bad pass and the ball rolled over the goal line where a swarm of local players downed the player recovering for a safety.

The Piqua regulars were then rushed into the breach and from then on it was not a question of victory but of how big the final score was to be.

With Washing, Purdy, Seifert and Freshour taking turns at carrying the ball, the well-balanced Piqua eleven marched down the field for its first score, Purdy finally lugging the oval across for a touch down.

There was no further scoring in the first period but the new Piqua scoring machine was loosed in the second period with the result three more scores were piled up. Scarcely had the second quarter opened when Comer, subbing for Freshour, plunged across for the second touchdown from the eight yard line.

A thirty-five yard return of the Central kickoff and a twenty yard penalty for the locals for illegal substitution placed the ball on Xenia's ten and paved the way for another score. Seifert going over a few seconds later on a buck.

Here Central showed a flash of offensive strength and made a first down on line plays. Gabriel then intercepted a local pass at midfield, and huddled behind superb interference sped around Central's right end for fifty-five yards and a touchdown.

The half ended with the ball in midfield and the score 24 to 2.

Central made its second first down to open the second half but a local pass was intercepted and it was not long before the visitors carried the ball down the field again. Piqua opened its offensive for another score with an assortment of stalling line plunges and knife-like dives just outside tackle that carried the oval well within Central territory. The tally came when Seifert went over from the two yard line. Gabriel drop kicked the extra point. The quarter ended with Piqua in possession of the ball on its twenty yard line.

Currie recovered a Piqua fumble to start the final quarter and Graham, Xenia's sturdy left tackle was knocked out making the tackle. He was not badly hurt.

Central almost immediately kicked and both teams took turns intercepting passes. "Buildup" Smith, Central full back, grabbed a long heave and raced fifty yards before he was upset. Seifert then intercepted a pass and unaided by interference, gave as pretty an exhibition of open field running as has been seen on the local field in years for a forty yard touch down sprint. Seifert was apparently nailed four times but in each instance shook off the tacklers and finally crossed the last chalk mark. Gabriel kicked goal.

Piqua kicked off its final touchdown when Gehm blocked Clemens' punt out, and recovered when the ball rolled back across the goal line for another score. Gabriel again made his drop kick good for extra point.

Aside from the flash of form in the first quarter, Central was completely outplayed by Piqua.

While in all-around team work and general ability, Piqua easily outshone the blue and white eleven, Central uncovered several players who from an individual standpoint held their own with the visiting stars.

The big colored lad, Fred Scurry, was as usual, a tower of strength. Graham and Currie also played a splendid game, these boys frequently penetrating the Piqua backfield and stopping rushes. Smith showed considerable ability both running the tackle and passing while Finley also showed good generalship in handling the team.

For Piqua, Seifert, Comer, Gabriel, Purdy, Freshour and Washing were the stars from an offensive standpoint. Purdy showed remarkable ability in line plunging and end runs, frequently carrying several Central tacklers from three to five yards before he was finally swept from his feet. The other Piqua backs, when carrying the ball, kept their feet well and followed interference or found holes with remarkable skill. Quarterback Washing handled his team cleverly and selected plays with good judgment.

The weather man's gift to the day's contest was perfect weather overhead and a turf unsurpassed for football.

Coach Vic Kolb, making his debut as the local mentor, had little cause to become disheartened over the Piqua game result. Handicapped by lack of letter men, he has assembled a team of green material that should build up a reputation in succeeding games. He has constructed a machine, although light and inexperienced, a strong machine, the defensive part of which snapped under high pressure in the course of what was really the supreme test and strongest game of the season Saturday.

Presence of the Piqua High band, a large crowd of visiting rooters and the O. S. and S. O. Home Cadet Band added color to the proceedings.

Health Hints
by the Father of Physical Culture

BERNARD MACFADDEN

Success is always associated with strength—usually a combination of mental and physical strength. The success of the athlete comes from his physical vigor, but the success of the business man depends upon his brains, comes from his nervous and mental energy.

However you take the average man who had made a great success in life, a great man financially, a great legislator, or a professional man, and you will find that most of them have been possessed with more than the average physical vigor. You will find that they were "well set up", strong and physically able to stand the strain necessary in this strenuous life.

Did you ever think that life, in reality, is almost one continuous struggle for success? When a little child toddles off to school the serious work of struggling for success begins.

Now, WHAT IS SUCCESS? Of course, with different individuals there will be varying definitions of success. Go out and ask the street gamin what success is, and he will tell you that it is the getting of large sums of money. You ask the average boy and the average man what success is, and you will be told that the successful man is the one who has money. And yet I question whether or not these rich men always make a success of life. I do not believe that success can be measured from a financial standpoint. A man may be ever so wealthy, and yet not be a success. He may actually feel that his life has been a failure. The most of us imagine—that is, those who have not wealth—that when we have attained riches, we shall have succeeded. And yet success is something beyond that.

A man's life has been a success when he has lived according to the dictates of his conscience and of his intelligence. A successful man may not be wealthy, may not be famous; but if he has lived wisely and has gotten all there is in life, if he has gotten all the power within his reach and has used it to advantage, if he has realized all the possibilities of his nature and environment, and has lived normally and temperately, I would call that man's life a success.

Persistent coughs and colds lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with two-fold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for persistent coughs and colds and other forms of throat troubles. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the inflamed membranes and stop the irritation and inflammation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of persistent coughs and colds, bronchial asthma, bronchitis and other forms of respiratory diseases, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if any cough or cold is not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. Creomulsion Company, Atlanta, Ga. (adv.)

MYSTERIOUS CRATE CONTAINED CAKE

Berlin, Oct. 12 — Consternation reigned at the postoffice of the Anhalter railway station here upon the arrival of a huge crate, addressed to "The Warrior, Kaiser Wilhelm I, Berlin.

Postal inspectors, at once suspecting that the box contained an infernal machine, summoned the Berlin bomb squad from police headquarters. The case was cautiously transported to the police department.

Detectives and bomb-specialists sniffed at the crate. It exuded a familiar odor, more reminiscent of baking powder than a powder magazine. Amid tense suspense, the cover was pried off. As the contents were disclosed, the detectives gasped. Before them lay a cake, exceeding an automobile tire in size. Poison was suspected.

But a courageous criminal inspector snatched a piece of the cake and tasted it. As he munched, a pleasurable grin expanded across his countenance. He helped himself to another portion.

Having reassured themselves, the police donated the cake to a local orphan asylum.

The purpose of the sender remains shrouded in well-baked mystery.
